Introduced by Tom Crawford. The compelling saga of Chris Guthrie is continued in this, the middle volume of Grassic Gibbon's great trilogy A Scots Quair. The scene has moved to the small community of Segget, where, after Ewan's death in the First World War, Chris has come to live with her second husband, Robert Colquhoun, an idealistic and liberal minister. Cloud Howe offers a brilliant evocation of small town life set against post-war economic hardship and the General Strike of 1926. Chris loses her baby and has to fight for a sense of her own identity in a world where only the land—and Chris herself—seem to endure with honour. Robert Colquhoun, wracked by war-ruined lungs, has to wrestle with his ideals and a spiritual crisis which will eventually kill him. Grassic Gibbon was already living in England when he wrote his great work. The incomparable artistry of Cloud Howe makes his self-imposed exile all the more poignant.

Rosemarie Nicoll:

As a scholar exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library as well as to make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just little students that has reading's soul or real their hobby. They just do what the trainer want, like asked to go to the library. They go to at this time there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this era, many ways to get whatever you want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore , this Cloud Howe (A Scots Quair) can make you feel more interested to read.
